Ike's Foreign Aid Program Passes Senate

Only Minor Changes Are Made; House Battle Is Anticipated

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower's foreign aid program, virtually unscratched after a three-day Senate battle, landed in the House today with prospects for early approval badly clouded.

The Senate authorized $3,637,000,000 in aid funds by a 57-25 vote Friday night. Final passage came after a 13½-hour showdown session in which the Senate rejected all attempts to cut the program and wrote in only four minor changes.

Eisenhower has waged a vigorous fight in behalf of the program and the administration was openly happy at the Senate action.

"Authorization" Only

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles conveyed that feeling to Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (Tex.) in an informal visit to Johnson's office a few hours before the final vote. Johnson and GOP Leader William F. Knowland (Calif.) led the fight in behalf of the bill. The bill only "authorizes" the program. Congressional budget - cutters will make a determined effort to trim it when actual appropriations are considered later by the House and Senate. The House has not yet acted on the authorization measure.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee has been holding off-and-on hearings for weeks with no real attempt at quick action. The group plans several days of closed sessions next week, but no final decision on the Senate - approved measure is expected for about two weeks.

However, Dulles will go before a House appropriations subcommittee Tuesday to plead for the program.

Latin Aid Included

As approved, the bill authorized $1,800,000,000 in military aid for this nation's allies; $00 million dollars in "defense support" or indirect military aid; $151,000,000 in "Point Four" technical aid, and 250 million dollars for a program of special grants to be made at the President's discretion.

Also included was 500 million dollars for the first year of the new development fund to provide economic aid in the form of loans. The fund represents the administration's attempt to break away from outright economic aid grants.

The remaining authorizations were spread over a variety of smaller programs including 25 million dollars for Latin American aid which the Senate Foreign Relations Committee added. Eisenhower had sought no funds for Latin America.

ELECTED PRESIDENT — John T. Campfield, of Sewickley Twp., last night was elected president of the Westmoreland County Firemen's Association at the 22nd annual convention held this week in West Newton. A huge parade this afternoon climaxed a week of activities sponsored by West Newton firemen.

Youth Shot in Knee by Pal in Accident Here

Louis Kokoska, 14, of R. D. 1, Belle Vernon, is in Charleroi-Monessen Hospital today with a bullet wound he received in his left knee when a companion, Ronald Fisher, 13, of 701 Page St., Monessen, accidentally discharged a 30-year-old revolver the two were examining last night.

According to Chief of Police Michael Kuvinka, the youths were examining the .32 cal. gun in the kitchen of the Fisher home when the lone bullet in the gun pierced Kokoska's knee.

Ronald told police he didn't remember pulling the trigger.

"All I can remember is looking at the gun and then a big flash. I heard Louis say he was shot," Fisher said.

The gun belongs to Ronald's grandmother, Mrs. Frances Fisher. She told police the gun had belonged to her late husband and hadn't been used for some 30 years.

She said the weapon was kept in a bedroom dresser and was not loaded when found by the boys. The boys found a bullet in a dresser drawer and inserted it in the gun.

Kuvinka said a charge of discharging firearms within the City limits will be filed against the Fisher youth.

The hospital said Kokoska is in "good" condition.

Mack Sennett 'Doing Nicely'

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Mack Sennett, 73-year-old pioneer producer-director, was reported "doing nicely" today at Hollywood Presbyterian Hospital following surgery for a kidney ailment.

Sennett, the director who introduced the pie - throwing comedy and the Keystone Cops, underwent the operation Friday. He was expected to be hospitalized for about two weeks.

Shutdown Necessary At Mill

Preceded by months of planning and preparation, actual work on the 8½ million expansion - improvement program in the bar and billet mills of Pittsburgh Steel Co. is now under way at the Monessen works.

When it is completed next Spring, Pittsburgh Steel will have an all-new, continuous, six-stand 30-inch billet mill to rank with the finest anywhere in the steel world.

And, in addition, it will have spent 2½ million for a head-to-toe rebuilding of the 18-inch bar mill facilities. Both mills — and the auxiliary facilities needed to operate them — are part of a 21 million expansion and improvement program.

"Putting the two new mills through construction and into operation — while finishing mills are kept in operation — will pose one of the trickiest engineering challenges Pittsburgh Steel has ever faced," Carl A. Breuer, vice president-operations, said.

Even Flow Aim

"There apparently has been some misunderstanding with employes of what has to be done in connection with this project," Breuer continued.

"Pittsburgh Steel's engineers have carefully worked out the entire program to insure that downtime of the 18-inch and 28-inch mills will be kept to a minimum.

"Our long range goal is to provide a more even flow of steel through greater efficiency for the production of a wider range of higher quality steel products. The result will be greater job stability and security.

"That's why the shutdown is necessary," Breuer explained.

One of the first facts Pittsburgh Steel's management had to face was the necessity of shutting down the 18 and 28-inch mills while base work was being done on them.

This posed the threat of cutting off the supply of tube rounds and squares these two mills make. Without these items, seamless tube and wire mills could not operate.

First move then was to find a way to build enough of a supply of these shapes to last the tube and wire mills during the shutdown. The sheet mill was not to be affected, because the big booming mill can continue to produce

Mass Burial for Truck Victims

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (UP) — A mass burial was to be held here today for 14 of the 20 victims who died in the worst truck accident in U.S. history.

Welfare officials arranged for a "decent and proper burial" of the unclaimed bodies of 14 Negro migrant workers who died in the fiery collision of two trucks June 7.

Authorities withheld burial for a week, but only the bodies of six of the victims were claimed by friends or relatives for burial.

Decker Girard Levin

NO PRESSURE FROM ARMY, SAYS GIRARD — Here's scene at Camp Whitington, Japan, as Army Specialist 3-c William S. Girard tells reporters the Army is not pressuring him to accept trial in a Japanese court in the killing of a Japanese woman on the camp rifle range — that his brother was mistaken about his saying he was being pressured. Flanking him are Brig. Gen. Charles Decker, Army assistant judge advocate general, and Maj. Stanley F. Levin, Army legal adviser.

Claims Attacks on Ike for Girard Action 'Scandalous'

WASHINGTON (UP) — Rep. Robert Hale (R-Maine) charged today that "inflammatory interests" are using the William S. Girard case to attack President Eisenhower.

Hale said some of the attacks being made against the administration for turning the Army specialist over to the Japanese for trial for killing a Japanese woman are "scandalous."

Moreover, he said Girard's attorneys are "arguing the case by epithet" here in federal district court where they are seeking return of Girard to the United States. A decision was expected next week.

The attorneys accused the administration late Friday in a memorandum filed with Federal Judge Joseph C. McGarraghy of attempting a Soviet-type "grab for power" in turning Girard over to the Japanese courts.

Refers to Hitler

They said the administration's handling of the case differed only in technique from Adolf Hitler's assumption of "absolute political power" in Nazi Germany. However, they said while Hitler usurped power abruptly, "The power here grabbed is by the more subtle Soviet technique of 'little by little.'"

Hale was among 40 GOP congressmen who attended a White House breakfast Friday given by President Eisenhower at which presidential aides gave a special briefing on the Girard case.

Both Hale and Rep. William E. Hess (Ohio) were previously doubtful about the administration decision to turn Girard over to Japan. But afterwards they said nationwide protests would be stilled if all the facts about the case were known by the public.

Hale said that if he had understood the facts of the case as they were understood by the American military leaders involved in Japan then he would have let the Japanese try Girard.

Girard is accused of slaying Mrs. Naka Sakai while she was scavenging for metal on a firing range. The Japanese have charged — and he has denied — that he threw shell casing toward her to entice her closer before he fired the fatal shot.

State Planning Relocation of Country Club Rd.

The State Department of Highways definitely is "going through" with plans for the relocation and reconstruction of the Country Club Rd. section of Route 88, Mayor William B. Hill has told Monongahela City Council.

The stretch will be built as a limited access highway which will relieve the city of Monongahela of any property damage costs, he declared.

Mayor Hill's statement that the project had gone to the consulting engineers came when a representative of the Sun Oil Co. appeared before Council to request permission to store and dispense gasoline in the East Main St. - Stalb St. district where, he said, the company had taken options on three properties.

Hill said he and Director of Streets Harry P. McCurdy had been in Uniontown and had seen plans for the highway which, he declared, would "cut straight through" the properties the company had in mind.

He recommended that a company representative contact Highway Engineer Norbert G. Bell in Uniontown and examine the plans before petitioning Council.

Dulles Observes 50th Year in World Diplomacy

WASHINGTON (UP) — Fifty years ago today Secretary of State John Foster Dulles got his first taste of world diplomacy at the Hague Peace Conference.

President Eisenhower planned to mark the occasion by sending Dulles a letter of congratulations.

Dulles planned to spend the day at his home in the Rock Creek Park section of the Capitol. But on Monday a belated anniversary party is being given him by his office staff. The staff will present him with a collection of his famous penciled "doodles" which he scrawls as he thinks.

Dulles attended the 1907 Hague Peace Conference as a secretary to his grandfather, former Secretary of State John W. Foster.

Dulles' grandfather was hired by the Imperial Government of China to be its representative at the conference.

Therefore, Dulles, who was a 19-year-old junior at Princeton University at the time, broke into diplomacy as a secretary of the Chinese delegation to the Hague conference.

After a lifetime of diplomacy and working in the field of international law, Dulles became Secretary of State in January, 1953. He has traveled 400,707 miles to attend international conferences during the last 52 months.

New California Road Possible. Engineer Says

A new road has been proposed for the new 20-acre industrial site at California.

District Highways Engineer Norbert G. Bell has announced that the proposed Coal Center-Elco river road, which would make California more accessible from the lower river sections, is entirely feasible.

The proposed route is two and a half miles long and would replace the winding route with a low-level highway.

Bell said the site of the river road would invade the right-of-way of the Monongahela division of the Pennsylvania Railroad but implied the highways department would have complete cooperation of the railroad company.

With a few more angles ironed out, Bell said, the highways department would secure consulting engineers to draw up plans and specifications and that contracts for the highway could be let late this summer.

The Central Monongahela Industrial Redevelopment Council, California Rotary Club, and other organizations in the community, have been interested in developing the river road plan.

Car Hits Pole; Power Is Off

James Edward Davis, 27, of 496 East Main St., Monongahela, is in Charleroi-Monessen Hospital today suffering from injuries received at 4 o'clock this morning when his car slammed into a utility pole at 12th St. and Meldon Ave. in Donora, it was reported.

The crash felled a main power line and the entire community was without electricity for about an hour.

Davis sustained an injured nose. The car, which was almost totally damaged, sheared off the pole at its base.

Grindstone Man Hurt in Tunnel

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Frank Lodika, 27, Grindstone, Fayette County, was in critical condition with multiple injuries at Montefiore Hospital today as the result of the cave-in of a tunnel in which he was working beneath the Monongahela River.

Lodika was erecting steel supports in the tunnel, which is part of a huge sewer project being built by the Allegheny County Sanitary Authority, when the roof dropped.

He was buried up to his neck in rock and dirt. Rescuers worked 30 minutes to free him. Lodika suffered a crushed chest, a broken left leg and back and possible internal injuries.

Named Air Advisor

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower has appointed one of the nation's most distinguished Air Force officers, Lt. Gen. Elwood R. Quesada (ret.), as his special assistant for aviation facilities problems.

Stirone Is Accused of Additional Shakedowns

PITTSBURGH (UP) — A wrecking contractor from Dearborn, Mich., has testified he had to pay a $35,000 shakedown to a Pittsburgh labor leader or face the prospect of going broke on a demolition job.

George T. Doherty, testifying at the extortion trial of Nick Stirone, said Friday the heavy construction worker boss demanded the payoff" in 1952 in cash but settled finally for scrap salvaged from the work.

"In this town," Doherty quoted Stirone, "before you submit a bid you should talk to other people instead of trying to move in on your own. I have a $35,000 price tag on the job."

Doherty said he at first refused to pay, but "I later changed my opinion when the labor supplied to me wasn't up to standard," he added.

"I had to put up a $270,000 performance bond so I felt the only thing I could do was go his way or go broke."

Stirone is on trial in Federal Court here accused of violating the Hobbs Anti-Racketeering Act with an alleged $31,000 shakedown of Pittsburgh building supplier William G. Rider. The payments, Rider said, forced him out of business.

Andrew Hawthorne, a wrecking contractor from Philadelphia, said he too paid Stirone several thousand dollars.

"I gave it to him because I felt I had to. I would look down the street and see Mr. Doherty's job and I felt it would be best to go along," Hawthorne testified.

Rarick Requests Senators Look Into 'Corruption'

PITTSBURGH (UP) — United Steelworkers officials said today they would welcome the congressional investigation of union affairs requested by protest leader Donald C. Rarick.

The union's international leadership, a spokesman declared, stands pat on an earlier statement by President David J. McDonald that the USW would "extend every possible cooperation" if the Senate Labor Rackets Committee wanted to conduct an inquiry.

"There is no corruption in our union," McDonald said last May 2 in a telegram to Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.), chairman of the Senate committee. "No outside person exercises any influence over our affairs."

Rarick and a dozen other members of his Dues Protest Committee appeared before the senators Friday to demand a full committee inquiry.

McClellan told newsmen after the two-hour closed door meeting the committee would make a further study of the "corruption" charges made by the dissenters.

'The Only Way'

Rarick, a McKeesport, Pa., millhand who lost out by less than 2-to-1 last February in his bid to unseat McDonald as USW president, said a committee investigation "is the only way we can straighten out" the 1,200,000-member union.

He said he told the committee of threats made against some steelworker officials who supported him in the election.

James A. Ashton, a Pittsburgh attorney who worked his way through law school with summer jobs in the steel mills, accused the USW leadership of spending "millions" from union funds to help reelect McDonald.

The union members, the protest committee counsel declared, need the Senate investigators to get "honest elections in both the locals and international union."

"Give us some safeguards of free elections and we would not be confronted with despots and dictators," he asserted.

Ashton also accused the USW international officers of being "in collusion with the company", but he failed to amplify on the point or explain which "company."

Forced to Move

William Staton said threats against him and his family forced him to move from Fontana, Calif., to Pittsburgh. He said he told the committee "someone tried to run my wife off the road, rocks were thrown at my house and the phone would ring at 3 or 4 a.m."

Also appearing before the committee were protest members Frank Butfone, Joseph D'Alberto and Michael Kuntza, all of Berwick, Pa.; Frank O'Brien, Pittsburgh, Fred Lombardi, Harrisburg, and Roy M. Henry and Bayard T. D. Reider, both of Steelton, Pa.

The protest movement began shortly after the USW's international convention at Los Angeles last September. The dissenters accused the USW leadership of "railroading through" an increase in union dues from $3 to $5 a month.

Manslaughter Charge

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (UP) — Robert Burke, 19, Sharon, Pa., today was charged with second degree manslaughter in the traffic death of a Youngstown man.

Nine, Including Two Americans, Die in Airliner

MOSCOW (UP)—Nine persons, including two Americans, were killed in the crash of a Polish airliner into a wooded area on the outskirts of Moscow Friday night, it was reported today. Three other Americans survived.

The Americans were members of a tourist party from Grand Rapids, Mich. They were enroute to Moscow from Warsaw.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman identified the two American victims as Mr. and Mrs. Harvey M. Beuker. He said their bodies were found in the wreckage of the plane today.

The American survivors were identified as Mrs. Margaret Tremper, her 13-year-old daughter, Michel, and Dick Cheverton. Cheverton is news director of television station WOOD in Grand Rapids.

Mrs. Tremper was taken to the Russian hospital at Vnukovo Airport outside of Moscow where her condition was described as "serious." Michel and Cheverton were under examination at the First City Hospital in Moscow.

The embassy spokesman said both Michel and Cheverton were "out of danger." He said they and Mrs. Tremper were visited by the U.S. embassy physician, Dr. David Langdon.

The plane, a twin engined Soviet built Ilyushin 14 of the Polish State Airlines LOT, crashed during a violent thunderstorm some four miles from the Soviet capital city. It was carrying eight passengers and five crewmen. In addition to the three Americans, the Polish stewardess escaped death.

Plumbing Plant Is Damaged in Ellwood City

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa. (UP) — Some 350 employes of the National Plumbing Fixtures Corp. were idle today as a result of a fire which burned out the firm's plant here.

Plant Manager Morabecky said production will be halted indefinitely.

Fire department officials estimated damage at $125,000, but Morabecky said he will not be able to estimate fully the losses before next week.

The blaze, which was discovered shortly after noon Friday, was believed to have started in the roto blast department. The roto is a machine which blasts rough spots off bathtubs and other fixtures before they are enameled.

Several firemen and volunteer workers were injured battling the blaze. The most seriously hurt was Mike Capello, a National Fixtures Corp. employe, who suffered arm burns.

Italian Mayor Takes to Hills With School Marm

ROGHUDI, Italy (UP)—Thirty Carabinieri bucked the code of the Calabrian Hills today looking for the village school marm kidnaped by the mayor three days ago.

Betting favored the code, which says kidnaping is a perfectly legitimate way to get a bride if flowers and candy don't work.

The mayor, 40-year-old Pietro Nocera, captured the woman with the aid of three blank pistol shots and 10 friends Wednesday. He carried her off cave-man style to the nearby Basso Sapro Monte Mountains.

Every day since then, 30 federal policemen (Carabinieri) and the three town police have been hitching horses to jeeps and heading off to the mountains to look for the pair.

The mayor had been courting 28-year-old Francesca Zavattieri with more conventional means for the last five months after he enrolled in her school for a refresher course to aid him in discharging his civic duties.

Turnpike Swindle Trial Will Enter Third Week

Prosecution Has Contracts in Court Yesterday

HARRISBURG (UP)—The trial of nine men accused of a multi-million dollar swindle of Pennsylvania Turnpike funds rounded out its second week with the state attempting to show that the Manu-Mine Research and Development Corp., Reading, received preferential treatment in contracts.

The prosecution Friday produced 25 turnpike contracts which were awarded in a different manner than the disputed 1955 drilling contract given Manu-Mine.

Turnpike Comptroller Franklin V. Summers read into the record contracts totaling over 60 million dollars which were awarded after they were endorsed by the state Highways Department and on the basis of competitive bidding.

The Manu-Mine contract, which called for the drilling of an unlimited number of holes through which silt was pumped into abandoned coal mine voids beneath the Northeastern Extension was awarded by the commission without competitive bidding and without the approval of the department.

Core of Charges

The contract, on which the commission paid the firm some $6,846,441, forms the basis for the state's charges of conspiracy to defraud against five former commission officers, the two top officers of Manu-Mine, and two engineering consultants.

Summers identified each of the contracts as "construction" contracts and said each had been bid on and awarded to the lowest bidder.

Defense attorneys contend the Manu-Mine contract was an "engineering" contract, which under commission practice is awarded by negotiation, rather than competitive bidding.

Under cross-examination by attorney Edward C. First Jr., representing suspended Commissioner James F. Torrance, Summers said the commission had established no regulations or rules to determine whether a contract is engineering or construction type. But he repeated his earlier testimony the Manu-Mine contract was considered a construction contract and treated as such in making payments to the firm for the drilling work.

Soviet Beats U.S. to Disarmament 'Punch'

LONDON (UP) — The Soviets seized the disarmament initiative from the United States by offering to allow establishment of international monitoring posts on Russian territory as the first step in nuclear weapons control, observers here said today.

The sources said Soviet delegate Valerian Zorin had beaten American representative Harold E. Stassen "to the punch" by presenting the latest Russian proposals before the five-power United Nations Disarmament Subcommission here Friday.

New Propaganda Ammunition

Stassen had returned only Friday from Washington with a revised American plan for "small measured steps" toward disarmament. He had been under heavy fire from the Allies for "going too fast" and for revealing as much or more information on the still-secret plan to the Russians than he had to the West.

Sources here said the Soviet proposals are sure to provide new ammunition for the Communist propaganda offensive against nuclear weapons tests.

Zorin formally proposed a two-to-three year ban on all nuclear tests with observers to be stationed in Russia, the United States, Britain and the "Pacific area" to ensure enforcement.

The United States, Britain and the Soviet Union are the only three powers to possess the hydrogen bomb.

While Western delegations termed the new Russian proposal "an important advance" in the protracted negotiations, it was pointed out they fell far short of the position taken by the West. The United States, Britain, France and Canada maintain any ban on nuclear tests must be accompanied by the prohibition of the production of fissionable material for military use.

The Soviet proposal received a cool reception at the disarmament talks here. However, U.S. officials in Washington said the United States is considering the possibility of working out a quick agreement with Moscow that would halt the tests for a year or so on a trial basis.

These officials also emphasized that American policy on how and when to suspend the testing of nuclear weapons still was being discussed with the North Atlatic Treaty Allies.

Ike Gets Credit for Civil Rights Victory

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower and the administration received the major share of the credit today for the House defeat of the jury trial amendment to the Civil Rights Bill.

Leaders on both sides of the issue agreed the administration was mainly responsible for its failure to gain passage. The House rejected the amendment by a vote of 199-167 Friday night after six days of argument.

One southern leader said he believed "last minute work by the White House" swayed enough Republicans to provide the margin for defeat.

The action resulted in a major victory for the administration since southerners had concentrated their main fight against the bill on the amendment.

Rep. Kenneth B. Keating of New York, GOP floor leader for the bill, said the defeat was due chiefly to the 'very vigorous support" given by President Eisenhower and Republican Leader Joseph W. Martin (Mass.) to those fighting it.

The administration opposed the amendment on grounds it would render the Civil Rights bill worthless. Under it persons accused of violating court orders protecting civil rights would have been tried by a jury instead of a judge.

Final House passage is expected next Monday.

Other congressional news:

Farm: A special presidential commission reported to Congress that greater research efforts can find many industrial uses for surplus farm products. The commission on increased industrial use of agriculture, in it final report, called for "dynamic and imaginative" efforts to help solve the agricultural surplus problem. The commission was set up in 1954 to make recommendations for a long-range program to widen the industrial uses of farm products.

Labor: Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell has asked the House Labor Committee to testify on proposals to require public disclosure of financial operations of employe welfare funds. Mitchell said the administration has made certain recommendations along this line but has not been asked by the committee to present its views. He requested an invitation from Chairman Graham Barden (D-N.C.) to testify.

Eighth Turncoat Changes Mind: Returns to U. S.

HONG KONG (UP)—American turncoat Andrew Fortuna, of Ionia, Mich. crossed into Hong Kong today from Communist China where he said he had spent a "pleasant and interesting" three years.

The 31-year-old Fortuna was one of the 21 American soldiers captured by the Communists in the Korean War who chose to live in Red China rather than return home. He is the eighth to change his mind and decide to go back to the United States.

He refused to comment to newsmen at the border on the point, but distributed three copies of a written statement, dated June 15, 1957. It read:

"My name is Andrew Fortuna. I am an American citizen who has been living in China for the past three years. Having had a pleasant and interesting stay, I am now going home for personal and family reasons."

Legislature Hoping to Adjourn by June 19

HARRISBURG (UP)—The Republican legislative leadership has unofficially fixed June 19 for final adjournment of the 1957 General Assembly—with reservations.

The final adjournment question still depends on a host of "ifs". The closing moments of the lawmaking groups are in sight:

—If the conference committee on the $1,111,043,000 General Appropriation Bill comes up with some changes acceptable to the Democratic minority.

—If the latest changes to the $31,750,000 school subsidy bill meet with the approval of the big-city lawmakers who rejected it once before in the House before it was sugar-coated to make it more palatable to the larger municipalities of Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

—If the Democratic Senate delegation feels that they have wrung all they can get in the way of concessions in restoring cuts in the general appropriation measure and is willing to release the 93 million dollars in non-preferred appropriations for state aided hospitals and schools, which require a two-thirds vote.

Both chambers cut down on their working hours Friday after the long, arduous day each put in Thursday when the Senate closed shop at 10:30 p. m. and the House a little past midnight.

Routine work on a flock of minor bills consumed the major share of the time in both chambers. The Senate forced a showdown with the House on the Korean War bonus bill by refusing to agree to changes voted in by the Commonwealth.

Erie Port Bill

HARRISBURG (UP) — Gov. George M. Leader today received legislation to expedite improvement of the Erie port.

Shutdown

slabs all during the shutdown.

Beginning last February, the company started purchasing thousands of tons of steel. This, added to Pittsburgh Steel's own capacity production since then, has built the needed backlog.

Engineers estimated the shutdown of the 18 and 28-inch mills can be held to approximately three weeks.

During the shutdown the half-century old, steam powered rope drive will be replaced with a 1,750-horsepower electric drive that will temporarily power the second stand of the 28-inch mill. The entire conveyor system of the 18-inch mill will be revamped and the hot saw relocated.

In addition, a new cooling bed is now being constructed and the billet yard building is being replaced in another phase of the costly expansion program.

To Improve Quality

One slick bit of engineering ingenuity will be the electric drive motor powering the second stand of the old mill temporarily through a gear reducer.

This same motor will fit one stand of the new 30-inch mill when it is installed and operating.

This baton-passing of tremendous power from the old mill to the new one will be another example of the advanced thinking directing the expansion program.

"We are striving to improve quality and efficiency to offer a more desirable product in the highly competitive steel markets," Breuer pointed out.

"Production is the key to job security and the high standard of living Pittsburgh Steel employes are now enjoying."

Canceled Votes

WE JUST HOPE the Westmoreland county commissioners are sure of their ground when they throw people's votes out of an election.

That's what the commissioners did this week when they ruled that certain write-in votes cast in the Republican primary election in Monessen were invalid because the voters did not use the full name of the candidate.

The absence of Republican candidates on the ballot makes write-ins the determinant of which Democrats become the Republican nominees. In this election there was vast confusion about the write-in procedure and there was a sad lack of uniformity in the handling of the write-ins by election boards.

From this mess it now develops that if you read the rules one way, certain candidates get the nominations; if you read the rules another way, other candidates get the nominations.

So this was no minor weeding-out by the commissioners. It happens that the votes they threw out can change the outcome of the election. That's a fearsome responsibility, and we hope they grasp the significance.

We aren't pretending to say which candidates should have the nominations. As a matter of political principle, none of them deserves to stand as the candidate of the Republican party. As a matter of practical politics, however, it makes a great deal of difference who captures the nomination, and it could have a definite bearing on the outcome of the general election.

It seems to us the history of elections in Westmoreland county is such that the commissioners might consider whether they are carrying out their duties. We have been subject to registration irregularities, to uninformed election boards, to "honest" mistakes, and to brazen ballot defacement. Government by the people doesn't exist unless the people can make their wishes known. The commissioners have no more sobering responsibility than to guarantee a voter his voice in the government.

Assistance Dividends

THE COMPLEXITIES of foreign aid are such that the average citizen is hardly equipped to judge whether or in what degree our vast spending abroad is accomplishing a purpose.

Most of us are probably naturally inclined to be charitable and would want to help the have-nots among the family of nations. Our foreign aid, however, goes far beyond the purposes of charity, and our government is firmly committed to the proposition that we are helping others abroad in the belief they will help us in the defense of the free world against tyranny.

We are entitled to wonder at times whether we are getting our money's worth. And it is not hard to understand why there is occasional clamor for cutting down the assistance program.

The fact that our allies in the East and in the West can now, with our aid, field 200 divisions while the United States by itself has only 20 army divisions should bring us some inkling of what this program means to us.

It means that scores of thousands of our young men are pursuing peaceful careers, their homes are intact, our economy is blessed with their services. Since the Russian protagonists seem often to understand only the language of divisions, it may even mean that peace itself has been purchased with our foreign assistance outlays.

Who can say what the cost has been? Or who can say what it has bought? Certainly any reduction of military and economic assistance to our allies should be weighed against the value of those 200 well-armed divisions that help us keep the balance in the world against communism.

Secondary Streets

THE CITY is amassing considerable experience with secondary paving in its street improvement program. The responsible officials need to make certain that this experience is being used to develop a sound practice in treating this important municipal problem.

Secondary paving is second rate paving. It is put down with minimum preparation, in minimum time, and of course, at minimum initial cost. As might be expected it gives second rate service and is not meant to serve thoroughfares bearing heavy traffic. Because it isn't a permanent improvement the cost is not assessed against affected property owners.

Hence secondary paving becomes a very tempting proposition for an administration to use. It looks like a street, and it looks like it costs the home owner nothing.

City Council has just announced a new program under which 16 streets will get secondary paving this summer at a total cost of some $31,000. That looks like a bargain. After successive seasons of such sprees however the maintenance of miles of secondary paving can offset the advantage of low initial cost.

The City's experience should be used conscientiously to assure that specific streets get the type of improvement the traffic calls for. The temptation should be resisted to stretch the cash in hand over the farthest footage of street just to please the most people.

Merry-Go-Round—

Canada May Divert Part Of Columbia

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — The new Conservative government of Canada is going to present some real problems for the United States. The first may be the diversion of the Columbia River in Canada so part of it doesn't flow into Washington and Oregon.

Mr. Pearson

The Columbia is the biggest single source of electric power in the Far West, and the Canadians propose to tunnel their portion of this water off through British Columbia to the Pacific Ocean before it gets to the American border.

In ebb seasons this might leave the giant Grand Coulee Dam in Washington looking about as empty as a Mexican bullfighting ring on a Monday morning. In the flood season it wouldn't affect American power from the Columbia. However, it would seriously stunt the development of Northwest power in the future.

There are three reasons for American concern:

1. Under a treaty which we forced on Canada in 1909, each country has "exclusive jurisdiction and control over the use and diversion, whether temporary or permanent, of all water on its side of the line." Thus Canada can divert the Columbia and we can't do a thing in the world about it except howl.

2. The Eisenhower administration has been so slow about discussing joint plans for control of the Columbia that the Canadians had already appropriated $250,000 to study the diversion tunnel.

3. It was the liberal government of Premier St. Laurent which soft-pedaled the Conservative British Columbia provincial government from diverting the Columbia. Now the pro-American Liberals are out and the Conservatives are in power.

Ike's Man Goes Slow

Part of the problem has been the vigorous opposition of American private utilities to supplying more water power to government dams at Bonneville and Grand Coulee. Built during the Roosevelt administration, these dams have been fought by the private utilities every inch of the way. The battle is now continuing over Hells Canyon.

Canada and the United States were supposed to get together to regulate the Canadian flow of the Columbia, so as to get more use of the spring floods which hurtle down to the sea when Canadian snows melt in the Rockies. But more water in the Columbia would mean more electricity for government power projects on the Columbia, so the private utilities have used their influence with the Eisenhower administration to hold back.

This was behind Ike's appointment of ex-Gov. Len Jordan of Idaho to the International Joint Commission which deals with water regulation between the United States and Canada. Jordan is a stanch opponent of public power and a stanch friend of the private utilities. He has even made speech after speech attacking Bonneville Dam, considered by most people as a great boon to Northwest industry.

"Having him in charge of our negotiations with Canada," comments Sen. Richard Neuberger (D Ore.), "is like having a mountain lion guard a herd of sheep."

As a result of American dilly-dallying, the Canadian delegate on the International Joint Commission, Gen. A. G. L. Macnaughton, persuaded Parliament to appropriate $250,000 to study the diversion tunnel to divert Columbia River water under part of the Rockies over to the Fraser River, which flows into the Pacific.

This would be a boon to British Columbia industry, now growing by leaps and bounds. It has been demanding more power.

And the provincial government of British Columbia, the social credit party which actually is to the right of the newly elected Conservative party in Ottawa, has been held back heretofore by the Liberal government.

Now the Liberals are out. So, with feeling running strong against the U. S. A., a lot of trouble could develop for us on the Columbia.

Canadian Ore Team

The astonishing defeat of Canada's strong man, Trade Minister C. D. Howe, will be a blow to Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey. Howe and Humphrey worked hand-in-glove to develop Labrador's iron ore for the U. S.-controlled Iron Ore Co. of Canada.

Humphrey's M. A. Hanna Co. is a co-owner of Iron Ore of Canada, and the C. D. Howe Co. was an engineering consultant to this operation. Howe, himself, has no direct interest in this concern, but members of his family are large stockholders.

Another place where the interests of Howe and Humphrey came together was in Algoma Steel, in which M. A. Hanna has a substantial interest. Howe was trustee of the estate of Sir James Dunn, a large stockholder in Algoma Steel.

From Washington—

When The President Is Ill

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — Irrespective of whether the President's "stomach upset" yields quickly or should become more serious, there are two facts which could usefully be borne in mind at this time.

Mr. Drummond

One is that the Eisenhower administration, for a variety of reasons, is in a better position than were its predecessors to function smoothly and responsibly in the event of a period of Presidential disability.

The other is that the country has good reason to count on prompt, candid and factual reporting from the White House on the state of the President's health.

The first fact means that there will not likely be a vacuum in the exercise of the powers and duties of the Presidency — as there was during Woodrow Wilson's sickness when the office came nearly to a stop.

The second fact means that there will be no occasion for a crisis of uncertainty because of concealed information concerning Mr. Eisenhower's health as occurred when President Garfield's operation was kept secret and when President Wilson's condition was not truthfully reported.

Naturally there will be great public anxiety over Mr. Eisenhower's health, but it will be an anxiety which will rise or decline on the basis of the medical news, not on the basis of gossip and rumor abetted by concealment.

Many Factors

There are a number of factors which reduce the danger of vacuum in the functioning of the Presidency should Mr. Eisenhower be sidelined for any period. Among the most important are these:

1. Fortunately Mr. Eisenhower is not at all disposed to hoard his authority or to be fearful — as was Wilson — that he could not recover his powers if he had to direct that they be exercised by the Vice President.

2. As has not always prevailed between President and Vice President, there is a relationship of mutual confidence between Mr. Eisenhower and Mr. Nixon and full-bodied agreement on national policy.

3. The Vice President would not, at any time, have to be elaborately briefed — or even briefed at all — on Administration policies. For four and a half years Mr. Nixon has been more at the center of policy formulation than any other Vice President in history. I remember President Truman telling me in 1945 that until the moment of his swearing in, he had never set foot in the White House as Vice President. As evidence of how he had not been kept informed, he said he had to read some 30,000 words a day of background memoranda for the first several months after he succeeded to the Presidency. Mr. Nixon is the first Vice President to preside over meetings of the Cabinet and the National Security Council in the absence of the President.

4. The Cabinet and the National Security Council have become more orderly instruments of government in the way Mr. Eisenhower has conducted the White House. He brings more major issues before the Cabinet than most Presidents. There is an organized Cabinet secretariat and there is also a sub-Cabinet which, under Max Rabb, Secretary to the Cabinet, meets after each cabinet session to do whatever is necessary to see that Cabinet sessions are carried through. The N. S. C. functions similarly, with an Operations Coordinating Board, to help implement its actions.

5. In the White House staff there is, in the role and person of Sherman Adams, a clear center of authority and initiative. Mr. Adams would be a significant force within the framework of established Eisenhower policy. As at Denver when the President was ill, Mr. Adams, in any Presidential disability, would be a source of great executive energy and continuity.

I would expect that White House press secretary Jim Hagerty would continue his policy of no concealment on the President's health. There is no great principle involved in the non-news policy. It is realistic and practical. A President's sickness cannot long be hidden since his official appointments are always known in advance and would have to be cancelled.

This policy rests on the sound premise that to try to conceal or even delay the news of any Presidential illness would ultimately have far worse repercussions than announcing the facts promptly and frankly.

Our College Graduates: Where Will They Go?

By HARRY R. PORE Jr.

Almost daily for the past couple of weeks The Daily Independent has printed stories about young men and women from this area graduating from colleges, universities and technical schools of various kinds. Like most other American communities, we probably have more young neighbors emerging from college this year than ever before.

I never read about these graduates without wondering how many will make careers in this immediate vicinity. I'm a little afraid that, for a wide variety of reasons, too many of them will be looking elsewhere.

Some of the reasons, of course, we couldn't do anything about if we tried. Many of the graduates have prepared for vocations which will take them inevitably to other parts of the country. And some are going into positions with national firms and may well make several "permanent" moves in their lifetimes.

But if we looked into the matter carefully, I suspect we would find that some of our young friends will be leaving us because they think opportunities are better elsewhere and, which is worse in my judgment, they feel there are more desirable places to live.

A Community Problem

Both of these reasons should be giving us deep concern. Because a community which is losing large numbers of its own best-trained young citizens is bound to be seriously hampered in its future development.

This subject is so large and important that it can't be treated fully in a short article. But I may be able to provoke some thought about it and that will serve a purpose.

I wonder, for one thing, whether we parents are always as careful as we might be to instill in our children a love of and a loyalty to their home town.

I was lucky enough to have been raised in an early Monessen home where this was made a particular point. And while few people discuss the shortcomings of Monessen more often than I, I hope it is also true that nobody is more appreciative of its assets or more ambitious for its future.

If parents continually find fault with the community they live in and — still worse — if they make no contribution to its improvement, their children are apt to reach the age of decision without the attachment that would keep them there even if opportunity is present. It just has become ingrained in their philosophy that the grass is greener elsewhere.

And this is often a serious mistake. A man I know once made a list of pioneer Monessen people who had established important businesses and professional practices here but whose children, many of them well educated, had not remained.

As we scanned this list in the light of our knowledge of these families, we wondered in several instances whether the offspring had done as well elsewhere as they might have done had they stayed to carry on in Monessen.

And in cases where these once substantial interests lapsed for want of successors, the community was the loser.

Steel Seeks Recruits

To take a slightly different tack, friends in responsible positions in the steel industry have admitted to me at various times that this industry has been lax in presenting its opportunities to young people planning careers.

It is trying now, of course, to catch up and is doing a more effective recruiting job. But it is finding that some of the other industries enjoy a big lead.

Locally, I wonder if our own companies are doing all they might do even now to attract the interest of local young people as they emerge from colleges and universities. There would seem to me to be a definite advantage in employing for future responsibilities in steel companies men and women who had been reared in the environs of steel mills.

Finally, it would be hard to exaggerate the importance of making our communities attractive enough so that, wholly aside from vocational considerations, our own young people would want to continue to live in them.

This should be one of our objectives, I feel, in the planning we are doing for a better Monessen. Young Americans, particularly those who are well educated, today have wider fields of choice than they have ever had in the history of the country. Almost literally, a trained young person can pick his locality and have good prospects of doing well.

We ought to be trying hard to make our Valley worthy of the consideration of our own sons and daughters.

In The Open—

Spring Season Has Been All Too Brief

By JOHN H. DAY

"June," says the songwriter, "is bustin' out all over." The countryman listens to this musical information, served up by swaying speakers in tricky harmonies against the four-beat rhythm of sophisticated orchestration, and is suddenly aware of the painful fact that one more spring has come and gone. All too brief has been the lease of that delightful season, and all too few the enchanted hours squeezed from his tight schedule to haunt wayside trails glorified by bursting blossoms and returning birds.

Already "knee-deep" in the Rose Month he looks around to find summer's book wide open on field and hill. The windy page flutters with fragrances calculated to excite the dullest heart. New cut grass and fresh turned garden loam add to these fragrances. And the combined essence of all the June roses all across the countryside. And the glorious, heady aroma spread lavishly on the breeze by every wild grape tangle in the neighborhood.

Every writer and every poet has had a go at capturing June in his prose or his couplets. And yet the return of the month is never an old story, but always a time of fresh wonders and new delights. The Hoosier poet beat the drums for June as his favorite month. "In the shade's where glory is!" he shouted, "Spread them shadders anywhere, I'll git down and waller there."

Season of Stability

Now comes the season of Nature's stability, the sequel to the inconstancies of April and the swift upward rush of May. The spirit of June is a tangible thing. It can be found in the ripe greens of expanded leaves, in the sky-blue dawn, the golden noon, the violet dusk and the silvered night. It swells in the voice of the brook in its rocky defile, in the borderland of light and shade at the woods edges.

The wave of bird song which has inundated the countryside passed its peak last week. From now on the feathered musicians will favor us with occasional solo performances only. Not until another year will the evening choir lofts resound again with the combined choral efforts of thrush and tanager, grosbeak and chewink, bunting and meadowlark. Now there are so many hungry mouths to feed that there is little time for singing.

June, of course, is the month of the wild rose, pink, delicate in fragrance and so fragile is its beauty that it cannot keep its petals though picked by the most careful hand. The pasture rose sets its solitary blossoms along every country lane. Perhaps loveliest of all is the swamp rose, which sometimes stands in tall clumps with its feet wet in a cold bog, distilling a heady fragrance which pulls the countryman across all sorts of risky terrain just to stand there and let his nose revel in the delightful perfume.

The 'Rain Crow'

The "rain crow" is seldom heard at his strange music until June arrives. This recluse among birds, rarely seen except on his silent, direct jaunts between treetops, works nightly at slaughtering all the tent caterpillars in the neighborhood. Bird watchers call him the yellow-billed cuckoo, but country folk have always known him as the rain crow, whose sepulchral notes are supposed to bode rain. When he sends out that resounding call it's almost a sure bet that June has arrived.

June twilight is a time of real enchantment. The hill country breeze, laden with heavy odors, dissolves upon the earth in dew. The daisy bends to the encircling grass, still uncertain whether "he loves me" or "he loves me not." The wood thrush ceases its song, and next the vesper sparrow. From the pasture comes one final ripple from the bobolink. Finally the booming frogs alone disturb the silence. Then with a golden spoon summer pours all its world a nightcap from a vintage moon.

Margaret R. Miller Weds Alvy C. Paul

The Olive Branch Baptist Church of Belle Vernon R. D. was the setting for the nuptial ceremony uniting in marriage Margaret Rebecca Miller and Alvy C. Paul. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Miller, of Rostraver Township and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Helen Paul Sisley, of Belle Vernon.

Double ring vows were exchanged on Saturday evening, June 8, at 6.30 o'clock. The Rev. Henry Frank, church pastor, officiated and the church altar was banked with ferns for the occasion. Assisting with the rites was the Rev. James Percy, pastor of the Lynnwood Lutheran Church.

Ronald Morgan sang "Oh Promise Me", "I Love You Truly" and "The Lord's Prayer". He was accompanied by Mrs. Alfaretta Winnett, aunt of the bride, who also played the nuptial marches.

A chapel length gown was chosen by the bride, who entered the church with her father, who gave her in marriage. It was made of peau de soie with a fitted bodice and bateau neckline. Her veil of sheer illusion was embroidered with sequins and pearls and fell from a tiara headpiece. Her only jewelry was pearl earrings and she carried a Prayer Book topped with a wade orchid with satin shower streamers knotted with lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Bruce Holderbaum was the matron of honor and chose to wear a yellow organdy gown. The bridesmaids were Molly Novak and Mrs. Guy Kelly Patterson. They wore gowns of mint green. All three wore brief face veils and carried colonial bouquets of carnations and roses.

Here's PRA Point System

A reader writes: "How does the Pittsburgh Racing Association figure its point standings?" . . . In reply: The PRA is working under a new system this year, which greatly reduces the point spread, thus creating far more interest. Of course, the top points in every racing show go to the winner of the feature event. That's worth 30 points. The car in second place gets 28. Then follows a two point drop for each car up to 17th place. Cars finishing 18th, 19th and 20th receive three points each and the next two cars two points each while the final three get a point apiece. In each heat race, the winner gets six points, second place, four; third place, three; and fourth and fifth, one each. For the semi-finals, the car in first place picks up a dozen points; the runner-up ten; third place, eight; fourth place six, and fifth place, four.

Bucky Lutes Is All Football

Regardless of the weather, Monessen's Bucky Lutes is a football man. Recently Bucky, who coaches the Vocational team in the Midget League, stopped by at Memorial Stadium to help work on the MFL's new concession stand. There was a Little League baseball game just winding up. By "coincidence" Bucky had a football in his possession and it wasn't long until the boys — dressed in baseball togs — were running through football plays. . . . Pvt. Paul Kolessar, an all-around athlete at Redstone High some years back, is hitting at a .389 clip for a service team at Camp Jejeune, N. C.

The PIAA will offer member schools a new insurance plan for athletes next season. Under the new set-up, the maximum medical benefits will be $500. Cost of the non-deductible coverage will be $12 per person . . . By the way, most valley schools no longer carry insurance policies. Instead they pay their own medical bills. Insurance premiums, alone, would cost schools probably over $1,000. Ordinarily medical expenses are not nearly that high. And since the maximum payment is limited, it is felt that the insurance just isn't worth the expense.

Selep Receives Engineering Degree

Tommy Selep, the former all-around athlete at California High, has received his engineering degree from the University of Maryland. Selep, an excellent student, missed an entire season of football due to injuries, but he was still rated as one of the Terps finest fullbacks . . . Charley Slick, Brownsville High baseball coach, has enjoyed considerable success since taking over the diamond reins about a decade ago. Ne less than seven of his pupils have played organized ball. Of course, the big star in the cast is Ed Roebuck, now an ace reliefer with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Fraley's Facts on U. S. Open Championship

By OSCAR FRALEY

TOLEDO, Ohio (UP)—Fearless Fraley's fairway facts and figures from the U.S. Open golf championship:

Tommy Bolt, long known as the most temperamental tee shot artist of them all, is learning to control his temper. Aggravated at his late starting time in the Open, he played only three holes in the second round and then withdrew because of a "sore back."

Tommy even smiles at himself these days. As example, there's a PGA rule that, for profanity, the pros must pay a $100 fine. Blowing a putt recently which would have given him a victory, Tommy walked off quietly by himself, stared at the ground for a few minutes and then, coming back to tournament director Ed Carter, said with a big smile:

"I just missed $2,000 worth."

Layne May Quit

Nick Kerbawy, general manager of the Detroit football Lions who is a spectator at Inverness, hints that Bobby Layne may quit the next campaign because he can't "afford" to make a mere $23,500 playing the game he loves. Layne has a new two-year contract but he is in oil and minerals in Montana and football only gives him about 20 per cent of his income.

Marty Cronin, the Toledo pro, decided then up in the clubhouse when he told the story of Gene Sarazen's last trip to hallowed St. Andrews in Scotland. Seems [illegible] after seeing [illegible] play a few holes and it wasn't long until Sarazen's caddie handed him a spoon. Sarazen asked why and the caddie replied after some deliberation, "Because I figured you'd be using it before long anyway."

Sarazen stomped off the shot and turning triumphantly to the dour-faced caddie, asked:

Proud Of Himself

"What do you think now?"

"It was all right," snapped the caddie, "but you'd have done better if you had used a spoon."

Wally Mund, the Midland Hills pro, recalls a match in which he and Bing Crosby played against Bob Hope and Light Horse Harry Cooper. Crosby and Mund won primarily because a 10-year-old boy kept popping up around Hope and upset him by unexpectedly showing a garden snake into the comedian's face.

"That sure was a terrible thing," Mund said to Crosby.

"I don't think so," Crosby grinned. "After all, I had a big bet with Hope—and I paid the kid to do it."

Patton, Maver Set Pace in U. S. Open

By LEO H. PETERSEN

TOLEDO, Ohio (UP) — It's suffering Saturday in the U. S. Open today with two guys who felt frustration for three years battling head and head in a bid for America's greatest fairway prize.

Amateur Billy Joe Patton—hoping to be the first amateur winner in almost a quarter century—and suave Dick Mayer lead 53 survivors into the two final rounds at Inverness club and come sundown there are going to be a lot of broken hearts.

Patton, the 35-year-old lumberman from Morganton, N.C., and the handsome Mayer, a native New Yorker, know all about that already. They both took their lumps back in 1954.

Both Blew Chances

That was when Patton held the lead going into the final round of the Masters, only to lose out in the stretch as he faded before the deadlock drive of Slammin' Sammy Snead and Bantam Ben Hogan. That year, too, Mayer knew gloomy times as he had this same Open within his grasp and lost it to Ed Furgol in the final holes.

Whether he or Patton win or lose, they'll have to fight for it today over the rolling, sun-baked acres at Inverness. Because only two shots behind their leading two-round totals of 138 and charging at them are grim-faced Doug Ford, the current Masters champion, and young Ken Venturi of San Francisco.

They aren't the only ones in it—although it looks like another disappointment for four-time runner-up Sammy Snead, who shot his second straight 74 for 148.

Demaret Three Back

Jimmy Demaret, the 47-year-old golfing grandfather who was the first round co-leader with a 68, stumbled Friday but still fell only three shots back at 141 along with Bo Wininger of Odessa, Tex. That was better than the fate of the other co-leader, Chick Harbert, who skidded to a fat 79 which dropped him all the way back to 147.

Another threat with two rounds to go as the field battles heat, par and pressure is swarthy Roberto DiVicenzo, the Argentinian slugger from Mexico City. He is at 142, four strokes off the lead and one ahead of three-time British Open king Peter Thomson, and still major threats at 144 are former champion Julius Boros, boyish Fred Hawkins, square-jawed Bud Ward and Sam Penecale of Philadelphia.

A heap of the big names of golf failed to survive those first two rounds, including Furgol and former champions Lloyd Mangrum and Gene Sarazen. Stepping down with them went such as Mike Souchak, Arnold Palmer, Ted Kroll, Dutch Harrison, Shelley Mayfield, Don Cherry, Vic Ghezzi, Denny Shute and the veteran Bobby Cruickshank.

Patton was "driving and putting like crazy" as he shot a 34-34—68 Friday to go with an earlier 70 that pushed him into a tie for the lead.

Mayer deadlocked him by virtue of the hottest nine holes of the tournament, an "in" 32 for a 68 on which he scored birdies on four of the last five holes.

VFW Closes in on Little League Title

VFW closed in on the first half title in the American Division of the Little League last night by nipping Page Local, 4-3.

The Vets, already assured of a tie, need only one more win to clinch things. Today they will meet the Ravens in what could be the deciding tussle of the first half chase.

In another American game last night, the Ravens kept alive their flickering hopes with a 15-6 triumph over Park Service.

Over in the National Division, the Elks stayed in first place with a 10-6 win over the Legion while CIO remained right behind with a 12-3 verdict at the expense of the Lions.

Steady Pitching

Bud Beeler pitched steady five hit ball to pace the Vets to their win. He helped his own cause with three singles, the last of which drove in the winning run in the final frame.

For the losers, Eric Crabtree homered with a mate aboard in the sixth to square the score for a short time.

The Ravens spotted Park Service six runs, then roared back for a 15-6 triumph. Jerry Francia led the attack with a double and two singles. For Park Service, Jim Coccaro had a homer and double.

Paul Barton pitched the final three innings for the winners, giving up just one hit while fanning six.

Larry Davis struck out ten and limited Legion to three hits as the Elks romped to an important 6-3 win. Tom Maatta had a double and two singles for the winners while Joe Koget chipped in with four singles.

Karenchak Gets Two

Buster Karenchak collected two homers, a double and single to pace CIO's 12-3 win over the Lions. Ralph Nuzzaci, who fanned 14 while throwing a three hitter, came through with two singles and a double.

MPSA Nips Ravens in City Loop

Here it is the middle of June and the Ravens still haven't won a City Softball League game.

The Birds lost their four straight assignments last night, bowing to MPSA, 5-4.

Harrison Spencer continued his great hurling for the winners, stopping the Birds on eight hits. The win moved MPSA into a second place tie.

The Ravens scored all of their runs in the third inning to pull into a 4-4 tie. MPSA came right back for the tie-breaking run in the fourth frame when Richard James doubled and Willie Bronson singled him home.

Joe Kunka and Tom D'Errico both collected a pair of hits for the losers. Bronson had two for MPSA.

Brickner Loses Sponsors For Channel Swim

Gus Brickner, the Charleroi steelworker who hopes to swim the English Channel this summer, confirmed today that he has lost his sponsors.

Brickner announced several weeks ago that the owners of Spillway Lake had agreed to sponsor his try at the Channel.

As a matter of fact, a big send-off celebration for Gus was observed Memorial Day at Spillway.

However no formal contract was ever signed.

Gus still plans to swim the Channel, though.

"I'm hoping that my friends will stick by and raise enough money to send me to England," said Brickner. "I've already made all the preparations."

Gus said he is scheduled to leave July 14.

"That means I'll have to get a lot of financial help in a hurry," said Brickner.

Gus estimates that it will take a minimum of $5,500 to finance the trip. He wants to become the first Pennsylvanian to conquer the Channel.

Kikla Pitches No-Hit Game

Ed Kikla pitched a no-hitter last night as Monongahela Junior Legion swamped Donora, 14-0.

Kikla fanned 16 and didn't issue a single walk. He helped his own cause with a homer.

Ageless Veteran Works Seven Innings as Vans Lose, 2-1

Ageless John (Scissors) McIlvain, 74, just won't call it a career.

Yesterday Scissors pitched seven innings for Van Voorhis, losing a 2-1 heartbreaker to hard-hitting Donora in Mon Valley League action.

Both of the Donora runs were unearned.

McIlvain, who has been active in valley baseball for more than half a century, fanned two batters and walked just one. He was touched for three hits.

He admitted after six innings that his ankles were beginning to "tire a little." When the first batter in the seventh reached second base on an error, he was replaced on the mound by George Quattro.

An error left in the winning run moments later.

Second Appearance

This was McIlvain's second pitching appearance of the season. Earlier he appeared in a relief role against West Newton.

Despite the setback, Scissors was pleased with his success.

"My knuckle-ball was working pretty good," he confided to manager John Barkey after the tussle.

McIlvain, who lives in Charleroi, observed his 74th birthday on June 4.

DOCTORING YOUR GOLF

By CARY MIDDLECOFF

Steering the Shot

If trying to steer the ball is one of your troubles, begin right now to sell yourself on the idea that the only way to make a good golf shot is to hit it with a good, free swing.

Trying to steer the ball (which almost never works) comes from fear or over-anxiety. It shows that you don't have confidence in yourself. And without confidence, you can't play good golf.

Think the shot out then give it your best effort. Steer the shot and you're doomed before you start. Remember, you can't "wish" the ball up there.

Fishing Fee Boost Goes to Governor's Desk

HARRISBURG (UP)—Pennsylvania sportsmen will pay 75 cents more for fishing licenses if Gov. George M. Leader approves a bill which has cleared the Legislature.

The Senate voted unanimously to send the measure to the governor's desk at its Tuesday session. It cleared the House late last week.

The measure increases the cost of fishing licenses from the present $2.50 to $3.25. The issuing agent would receive 15 cents instead of 10 cents for his services.

William Voigt Jr., executive director of the state Fish Commission, said that should the governor sign the bill, he will draw up a program based on the expected new revenues and submit it to the Fish Commission members at the agency's next meeting July 8.

The measure specifies the additional money must be used for improvement of the state's fishing facilities and not for fish propagation.

Kluszewski Goes Wild to Pace Cincy to 5-4 Win over Giants

By MILTON RICHMAN

Big Ted Kluszewski was "a bit disappointed" today, which baffled the Cincinnati Redlegs no end because all he did was slam a homer, a double and two singles to keep them within a half game of the National League lead.

Kluszewski, off the disabled list only two days, went on his tear against the New York Giants Friday night in pacing the Redlegs to a 5-4 victory that snapped their four-game losing streak.

So what's he unhappy about? Just this:

"I loused up a great opportunity in the ninth inning," he chided himself. "Red Worthington gave me a real good pitch and I should have put it in the seats. Instead, I flied out to right field."

Back in the Cincinnati lineup only the second day after being sidelined all season, Klu connected for his homer with one on in the sixth off one of Stu Miller's "gravity pitches." That broke a 1-1 tie and put the Redlegs ahead to stay.

Braves Hold Lead

The Milwaukee Braves clung to first place with a 10-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies; Junior Gilliam stole home with two out in the 10th to give Brooklyn a 2-1 thriller over St. Louis, and the Chicago Cubs snapped Pittsburgh's five - game winning streak with an 11-5 decision.

In the American League, the White Sox maintained their four-game lead by humbling Washington, 10-4, while the second - place Yankees crushed Kansas City, 10-1 with the help of Mickey Mantle's 19th homer. Cleveland topped Baltimore 7-2, and Detroit wiped out a three-run deficit to beat Boston, 5-4.

Southpaw Warren Spahn of the Braves posted his seventh triumph as his teammates racked four Philadelphia hurlers for 13 hits, including Hank Aaron's 17th homer with two on. Spahn yielded only three hits.

Gilliam made his game-winning steal of home with the bases full when young Lindy McDaniel took too long a windup. Ken Boyer put the Cards ahead with a second inning homer but the Dodgers tied the score in the sixth on a walk and two singles. Don Newcombe pitched an eight-hitter for his fifth victory.

The Cubs rapped out 17 hits, including four by newly - acquired Chuck Tanner, in sending Ronnie Kline down to his ninth setback. Rookie Dick Drott was the winner although prosperity went to his head with an 11-1 lead in the eighth and he gave way to Don Elston. Ernie Banks had a home run and a pair of doubles for the Cubs in their biggest run total of the campaign.

Stobbs Loses 11th

Al Lopez' White Sox turned on luckless Chuck Stobbs for four runs in the first inning and six more in the fifth as the Washington southpaw suffered his 11th defeat of the year against no victories. Walt Dropo homered in the first inning. Dick Donovan had a shutout until Jim Lemon and Bob Usher tagged him for homers in the ninth. That brought in Bob Keegan, who gave up a homer to Eddie Yost before retiring the side.

The Yankees knocked out Wally Burnette with a five-run outburst in the fifth inning as Tom Sturdivant scattered eight K.C. hits for his fifth victory. Mantle hit his homer with one on in the eighth inning, but Bobby Richardson, Hank Bauer and Bill Skowron led the Yanks' offensive with three hits apiece.

Mike Garcia of the Indians pitched his first complete game of the season and Dick Williams, obtained earlier in the day from Baltimore, and Bobby Avila each homered in the victory over Baltimore.

Duke Maas of Detroit contributed a two-run homer off loser Frank Sullivan in helping himself to his seventh victory. Harvey Kuenn supplied what proved to be the winning run with a homer off reliever Bob Chakales in the seventh inning.

Chicago Pounds Pirates, 11 to 5, To End Streak

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates had their five-game victory streak, their longest since 1955, ended Friday night by the last place Chicago Cubs.

The Cubs went on a batting spree pounding out 17 hits for a 11-5 victory.

The rout was even worse going into the eighth inning. The Pirates were trailing 11-1 in their half of the frame. But the Bucs put together a triple by Bill Virdon, a double by Bill Mazeroski, two pinch walks and two singles for four runs.

The initial Pirate run was scored in the fourth when Mazeroski came home after a wild pitch and a single by Dick Rand.

Hard Hitting

Seven of the Cubs' 17 hits were for extra bases. Ernie Banks paced the attack with four RBI's, coming on a two-run double in the sixth and a homer with a mate aboard in the eighth. Walt Moryn drove in three runs and Jim Bolger accounted for two.

The Pirates threw five pitchers into the fray with Ron Kline, the starter, taking the loss, his ninth against two victories. Dick Drott had the victory, his fifth with six setbacks.

The Pirates and Cubs clash again this afternoon with Vernon Law (3-2) going against Chicago's Moe Drabowsky (2-5).

Durelle Draws With Anthony In Big Surprise

DETROIT (UP)—Yvon Durelle headed back to Canada and his fish nets today, hopeful that his draw Friday night with top-ranking light - heavyweight contender Tony Anthony will boost him into the 175-pound title picture.

Durelle thought he won the nationally-televised 10 - rounder, but nevertheless he was pleased with the outcome because he entered the ring a 4-1 undergod.

Anthony was anything but pleased with the decision because it put a serious crimp in his hopes for an early shot at Archie Moore's light-heavyweight crown.

Durelle, who comes from Canada's fightingest family, had Anthony on the ropes at the finish after throwing everything but the referee at his opponent.

The referee, Lou Handler, scored the round 5-1 in Durelle's favor. Under Michigan's "five-point must" scoring system, the winner of the round gets five points and the loser a lesser number.

Both boxers wound up with 41 points on Handler's card. Judge Barney Plotnik gave Anthony the fight, 43-39, but judge Malcolm House saw Durelle the winner, 40-39, thus creating a draw.

Bass Season Opens in State

Pennsylvania's longest open bass season since 1917 begins today and will extend to March 14, 1958.

A new regulation for the season will permit Pennsylvania anglers to keep any bass caught regardless of size.

"This Saturday, in addition, marks the beginning of the longest period since before the turn of the century during which all species of fish in the state's waters may be taken by her anglers," said William Voigt, Jr., executive director of the Pennsylvania Fish Commission.

"This period will come to an end at midnight, Sept. 2, when brook, brown and rainbow trout return to a protected status in all but several designated lakes which will be named by the Fish Commission subsequent to its meeting on July 8," Voigt said in a statement.

Uniontown Woman Wins in Golf

UNIONTOWN, Pa. (UP)—Ann White of Uniontown posted a 157 on her home course Friday to win low medal honors in the West Penn Women's Golf Assn. tournament.

Mrs. Edward P. Nestor of Duquesne took low net crown in Class A play with a 164-20—144.

Macias to Defend His NBA Title In Frisco Tonight

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—Interest in the fight game is supposed to shift from the baseball diamond back to the prize ring tonight when Raul (Raton) Macias of Mexico defends his NBA world bantamweight title against Dommy Ursua of the Philippines.

Debonair Raul and tattooed Dommy may have to stage a real war, however, to offset such recent heavyweight encounters as Larry Doby vs Art Ditmar and Don Drysdale vs Johnny Logan.

Matchmaker Bennie Ford expects to gross $60,000 for the 15-rounder at the Cow Palace where Macias is making his first appearance since winning the vacant championship there with a victory over Thailand's Chamrern Songkitrat in 1955.

The rangy Macias will enjoy a six-inch advantage in height over Ursua and has been rated an 8-5 favorite to have too much class for his plugging opponent.

Movie Idol

Macias, a movie idol at home as well as a fight hero, has won 29 fights and lost one while stopping 17 opponents. His single title defense was at Mexico City 15 months ago where he TKOd Leo Espinosa in 10 rounds. He has had one fight this year, halting Juan Cardinas of Spain in six.

"El Raton," freely translated as "Mickey Mouse," suffered his one loss when Billy Peacock stopped him in the third round in 1955 after fracturing his jaw.

Ursua, brave and piano-legged, has a partial record of 36 wins, nine losses and three draws. Some other bouts in the Philippines are unrecorded. He has 28 knockouts to his credit.

The fight only is being broadcast by shortwave to Mexico. There is no television.

Seven Horses in 89th Belmont Stakes Today

By RAY AYRES

NEW YORK (UP)—Bold Ruler, a giant of a horse with a tremendous stride, and Gallant Man, a little colt with a fighting heart, clash today in the 89th running of the 1½ 300 Belmont Stakes.

Five other three-year-olds were entered in the mile and one-half climax of the Triple Crown classics. However, interest centered on Bold Ruler, the Preakness Stakes winner, and Gallant Man, who was nosed out of a Kentucky Derby triumph by Iron Liege when Willie Shoemaker, his rider, misjudged the finish line.

But since the Belmont is one quarter of a mile longer than any of the entrants ever has raced, the others cannot be counted out of it until the field has charged once around spacious Belmont Park's running strip.

They are Cohoes and Pop Corn from the Greentree Stable, Cain Hoy Stable's Lucky Dip, D.-M. Farm's Inside Tract, and Bold Nero, a stablemate of Gallant Man and also owned by Ralph Lowe of Midland, Tex.

Carry 126 Pounds

All starters carry 126 pounds in this searching test of stamina as well as speed. Level weights were expected to have little effect upon Bold Ruler and Gallant Man, who each had that impost up when they clashed in three other races this year.

Jockey Eddie Arcaro made up most of the poundage aboard Bold Ruler while Shoemaker again rode Gallant Man. Bold Ruler was favorite at odds of 4-5.

Gallant Man was a strong second choice at even money. The Irish-bred colt was fourth behind Bold Ruler last winter in the Bahamas Stakes but second in the Kentucky Derby, when Bold Ruler was fourth, and second to Bold Ruler in the Wood Memorial.

The Belmont will be broadcast and televised nationally (CBS), starting at 4:30 p.m. e.d.t. Post time is approximately 4:47 p.m.

Yankees Are Angered over 'Bully' Charges

NEW YORK (UP)—Angered by charges that they are trying to "bully" the rest of the American League, the New York Yankees today accused rival pitchers of "throwing at Mickey Mantle" in a deliberate attempt to injure him.

The accusation was made by Yankee General Manager George Weiss after American League President Will Harridge had fined three members of the Yanks and two White Sox players sums ranging from 100 to $150 for their Thursday brawl at Chicago.

Weiss pointed out that the pitchers weren't throwing at Mantle's head but they were trying to hurt him by aiming "at his legs and feet."

Weiss was not the only member of the Yankees' front office to rally to the defense of the world champions.

To Refund Fines

Yankee President Dan Topping said he intended to refund the fines levied against his players — Enos Slaughter, Billy Martin and Art Ditmar—by Harridge.

"Our players did not start the fight," Topping said, "and we certainly would not expect them to run when the Sox players started the brawl."

John Rigney, vice president of the White Sox, was equally as quick coming to the defense of the two Chicago players who were fined, Larry Doby and Walt Dropo.

"I am glad our players stood up and fought for their rights," Rigney declared. "The Yankees have been bullying their opponents long enough. Maybe the incidents of Thursday will put an end to the rough tactics."

Logan 'Mad' at Fine for Fight

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—Johnny Logan of the Milwaukee Braves was hopping mad today over the fact he was fined $100 for his part in Thursday's "Battle of Brooklyn," while Dodger pitcher Don Drysdale got off with a $40 assessment.

Admittedly surprised over the $60 difference in fines levied by National League President Warren Giles, Logan snapped: "It's an injustice . . . it's not an even settlement."

"Why, he (Drysdale) started the fight," the Braves' shortstop added. "He threw at me. I was only trying to protect myself."

In the second inning of Thursday's Brooklyn - Milwaukee game at Ebbets Field, Drysdale struck Logan in the back with a pitch. They exchanged words and later punches in a wild melee that involved several members of each team.

Maytag Automatic Washer at Burger's Does Washing Right

If you housewives are interested in a truly great washer, then you'll want to go to the Burger Appliance store, 409 Schoonmaker avenue in Monessen, and look over that new All-Fabric Maytag which has two speeds and three water temperatures removing the heat and the beat from washday problems.

Burger's is also the home of many Philco appliances.

Haven't you wished for an automatic that gives everything you wash the same gentle care your own hands do?

Now, there is. The new Maytag All-Fabric Automatic is almost human in the way it adjusts to the job. You just push buttons.

It controls the amount of water, the temperature (from hot to cold), and gives you a choice of washing speeds. Handles delicate things gently, yet gets heavy wash Maytag-clean (which, as Mother will tell you, is the cleanest there is).

With the new Maytag Automatic, you save as you wash. Over the years, you will get back in savings what you paid. In one year, for instance, you'll save up to 26 boxes of soap powder, up to 2,500 gallons of hot water, and biggest saving of all, your clothes will last longer.

Let your Maytag dealer show you advantages we can't even find room to mention here.

'Whipped, Wash'

Some automatics knot and tangle your wash. Not Maytag. Regular or slow speed saves strain on sleeves, straps.

Creased Nylon

Caused by too-hot water, fast spin. Wash nylon wrinkle-free in warm or cold water at slow speed in the new Maytag.

Shrinking Woolens

Dad's socks now Junior's size? Not with Maytag's cold water wash and rinse. Socks, sweaters, skirts stay their size!

Split Seams

Often caused by the strain of whipped and beaten wash. Maytag's gentle action for delicate things prevents this.

Only Maytag gives you all these work, time and money-saving features: Two-speed action, suds saver, cold water wash and rinse, double-spin tubs, safety lid, automatic water level control.

Install Winkler Oil Burner for Better Heating

Do you want to stretch your fuel dollar a little further? Of course you do!

The solution is easy. Go to the Monessen Heating & Roofing firm, 445 Schoonmaker avenue. Phone MU 4-6313, and let them tell you the many advantages of having a Winkler system in your home.

When you buy fuel or a heating plant you're really buying heat, and you want as much as you can get for every dollar invested! Here's why the Winkler Econ-O-Flow principle of heat flow gives you more heat per dollar.

The hot gases from the burning fuel rise between protecting walls of high temperature refractory, where the temperature of the gases is kept high to assure complete combustion.

They then travel downward in intimate scrubbing contact with the Heat Exchanger walls — all the way to the bottom of the furnace — before they are released to the flue.

The cold return air entering the furnace jacket contacts the heat Exchanger and reaches its highest temperature just before it leaves the furnace. All of the steel in the Heat Exchanger, even the bottom, is used as a heat transfer surface — hence less heating costs!

Another money-saving advantage in the Econ-o-flow design is the HEAT TRAP. Hotter gases are lighter — they rise and they don't come down until they are cooled. Notice how the Winkler Econ-o-flow Heat Trap "soaks" the heat out of the hot gases, causing them to cool and "settle" before the Trap lets them get to the smoke pipe.

Runs $50 into Multi-million Trust Fund

SANTA ANA, Calif. (UP)—Donald Ellis Simon is a 21-year-old multi-millionaire today because his father made a $50 investment during the Depression.

The story of the growth of a $50 trust fund into a $2,643,997 fortune for young Simon was revealed Friday in a court accounting of the handling of the fund.

Simon's father, Norton Simon, head of the Hunt Foods Co. of Fullerton, Calif., planted the seed of the amazing money tree in 1936 when he purchased his four-month-old son five shares of stock in the Arlington Canning Co., a company he had just taken over.

Under the elder Simon's astute management the Arlington Co. prospered and was merged with Hunt Foods Co. in 1943. By that time, the original $50 had grown into $397,778.18.

The financier turned over the trust fund to young Simon's uncle, Harold Brooks, a Los Angeles food broker, who administered the fortune from July 23, 1943, until it was turned over Friday.

The final accounting showed that the five shares of Arlington stock had grown to 166,551 shares of Hunt Foods, Inc., with a book value of $930,000 and a market value of $2,643,997.

Mayflower Bobs At Pier Awaiting Many Visitors

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (UP)—The Mayflower II bobbed at rope's length from State Pier today awaiting the inspection of expected throngs of visitors, which have so far failed to appear.

Floodlights were placed around the pier Friday night so that tourists could inspect the ship—from arm's length — on a round-the-clock basis over the week end. However, no sightseers will be allowed on board.

The vast throngs which greeted the arrival of the Mayflower replica in Plymouth Harbor Thursday, melted away to little more than 1,000 persons Friday. Most of them lined the pier while perspiring crewmen unloaded 92 "treasure chests" containing 200,000 worth of British merchandise.

The chests, which held wares ranging from snuff boxes to safety pins, were consigned to American department stores. The cargo included a gift of animal feed to President Eisenhower for his Gettysburg, Pa. farm. Massachusetts Gov. Foster Furcolo received a formica-topped table.

Today was designated as Indian Day and redskins from Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Maine, New Hampshire and Massachusetts were on hand to take part in the activities.

Sunday's program includes an outdoor presentation of the annual "Pilgrims' Progress," a re-enactment of early Pilgrims going to church. About 50 local residents, attired in 17th Century costumes will participate.

Mayor Accused

HUEYAPAN DE CAMPO, Mexico (UP) — Indignant townspeople accused Mayor Primitivo Rios today of fearing down the town's principal bridge and selling its timbers to strangers.

Devotions Held At St. Edward's

Forty hour devotions started this morning with mass at St. Edward's Catholic Church, Fayette City.

There was a procession with the altar boys to open the devotions that will end on Sunday at 4 p. m. with the benediction. Confessions will be heard by the Rev. Charles Ribick and visiting priests.

The schedule for the adoration tomorrow will begin at 9 a. m. and continue for two hours. From 11 a. m. to 1 p. m., Gillespie and Lowbar parishioners; 1 to 3 p. m., Arnold City; 3 to 5 p. m., Fairhope, Lynnwood and farmers; 5 to 7 p. m., Fayette City and Naomi and at 7:30 a sermon will be given by the Rev. Roland of the Franciscan Order.

On Sunday at the 8:30 a. m mass a large class will receive first communion.

Quite A Feat

LAKELAND, Fla. (UP)—Police today sought a woman with big feet. Shoe salesman E. R. Erskine reported Friday someone stole six pairs of women's shoes, each worth $23, from his parked car. He said all six pairs were size 12's.

Among Glacier National park's bears, only a dozen beg food from visitors. One of the most notorious bear panhandlers was once trapped and taken to a remote area. Three weeks and 60 miles later she was back on her old stand on the Going-to-be Sun highway.

Hershey Claims Draft Calls May Be Cut in Half

QUANTICO, Va. (UP)—Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey said today that monthly draft calls may be cut in half by a prospective reduction in U.S. armed forces.

That would eman trimming calls from the present 13,000 men a month to between 6,000 and 7,000.

Hershey made the statement in an interview at the annual defense leaders conference being held at the Marine base here. Almost 170 of the nation's top defense and civilian brass are attending the three-day session for a secret discussion of defense problems.

Hershey discussed future draft calls when asked about the effect of a manpower cut indicated by Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson at a news conference here Thursday. Wilson talked about trimming defense expenditures from the present 42-billion-dollar rate to the 38-billion-dollar rate set in President Eisenhower's defense budget.

If that approximately 10 per cent cut is carried out across the board, it could mean a reduction of more than 200,000 men in the present 2,800,000 men under arms.

However, Hershey said despite possible draft cuts the draft cannot be abolished. He said it might eventually be just as difficult to maintain forces at the lower level as at present levels.

Hotter Weather Is on the Way In Next 30 Days

WASHINGTON (UP)—It's going to be hotter than usual for the next 30 days in the eastern third of the United States.

That's the bad word from the U.S. Weather Bureau.

Its 30-day outlook predicts unseasonably hot weather for the Ohio Valley and the Middle Atlantic states.

The western half of the country can expect cooler than normal temperatures, with the exception of the California coast. There, and in the rest of the country, normal summer weather was predicted.

Lighter than normal rain is expected in the far southwest and northeast parts of the country. Elsewhere, rainfall will exceed seasonal averages, the bureau said.

Wants no Horse

PASADENA, Calif. (UP)—Mrs. Mildred Peime, a favorite high school English teacher, received a $50 spider monkey from her graduating class this week as a present. "The students say I always tell them to stop the monkey business and that I call them a bunch of monkeys," she said. "I know one thing—that I'll never tell any class to stop horsing around."

Rehoboth Church Society Meets; Reports Given

The Missionary Society of Rehoboth Presbyterian Church met Thursday with Mary Wiseman as devotional leader.

Prayer was offered by Violet Winstone and scripture readings were given by Camille Smith, Thelma Smock, Elsie Gaffney, Eleanor Heath and Beth Patterson. The devotional theme was "Sickness and Health". Joan Durka presented several accordian selections.

Letters were read as follows: Mrs. Luce, from North India; Joan Smith, from a young Indian girl, and Thelma Smith, from a Christian Education college student.

Topic leader was Violet Winstone, who spoke on "Everyday People Ready for God's Work". Mae Gilmore gave a talk on her recent visit to Warren Wilson College in Smocky Mountains. The college is sponsored by Presbyterians.

The business session was in charge of Frances Colvin, president. An invitation was received from the First Presbyterian Church for an afternoon tea Wednesday at 2 p. m. It was also announced that a retreat will be held July 10 at Mt. Vernon.

Emily Cook reported on her trip as a delegate to the Synodical Convention at Grove City. It was announced that the September meeting will be an afternoon affair with all the ladies of the church invited.

Hostesses were Mrs. Walter Colvin, Sr., Mrs. Walter Colvin, Jr. Mrs. Greenwood, Mrs. Sallie Smith, Tillie Cook and Mrs. R. J. Cook.

Mrs. Ethel Turner, Mary Makovsky, Mrs. Leo Makovsky, and daughter, Bernadette, Mariann and Anna Skurkay, Kathy Sterner, Minnie Charlton and Trumaine Rosic, of Rostraver Twp., attended a dance revue at Charleroi High School this week. Patty Skurkay, Pamella Turner and Judy Costello took part in the program. Patty Skurkay entertained with readings.

Debt Fulfilled

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UP)—It took more than 40 years but the defunct Czars government of Russia has fulfilled its obligation to Grand Rapids. City Treasurer Simon J. DeBoer said he has received word the city soon will receive $1,891 for payment and interest on a $1,000 bond issued by the Czarist government. The U.S. government is paying bond holders with assets of the Czarist government that were frozen when the Communist revolution began.

What's Expected of Expectant Pop

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

Most everyone makes a big fuss about an expectant mother. There is plenty of advice available on what she should do, what she should eat — even what she should wear.

But the poor expectant father goes wandering about in a daze, completely unaware that he has important duties, too. Let me try to remedy this situation right now, the day before we pay tribute to Pop.

The father as well as the mother should be prepared for the additional responsibilities a baby will bring.

Many hospitals today have programs instructing the father-to-be on how to bathe the baby and help in his care. If such instruction is available to you, I advise that you take advantage of it.

Yet, the father has another important role to play as he and his wife get ready to welcome the baby. I think it would be extremely helpful if he fully understood just what changes are taking place in the mother's body.

A husband can and should help his wife a great deal during her pregnancy.

For one thing, you fathers-to-be should accompany your wife when she goes to see her obsteirician or physician. This will help you to understand the emotional changes she may undergo and the need for adjusting to them.

You have got to learn to adjust to her change in disposition and to rather abrupt reversal of her attitudes toward domestic habits and situations. These are apt to occur fairly often.

If your wife is reticent about visiting the doctor and carrying out his directions concerning diets, activities, exercises and medications, you can encourage her to follow his orders.

You can also help quiet any fears which might develop.

And you can keep her happy during this period. Show more than normal interest in her and bring her small gifts every once in a while. This will help her a great deal, believe me.

Question and Answer

S.E.: I had a coronary heart attack about six months ago. Are there any known cures for this disease?

Answer: You should have adequate rest and eliminate possible contributing factors such as overweight, high blood pressure or stress which might have led to your having an attack.

Movie Company in Europe Has Time

By ALINE MOSBY

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Movie locations abroad may sound like sight-seeing tours, but a recent one in Germany that featured a fake kidnaping brings a weary wiggle to the mustache of Adolphe Menjou.

The veteran actor, clothes-horse and purveyor of conservative opinions has returned from what sounds like the liveliest movie location in years—the filming of "Paths of Glory" in Munich.

A movie company in a foreign country is like a little isolated world of its own, and this one, organized by Kirk Douglas' Bryna Productions, had more than its share of adventures.

First of all there was actor Tim Carey, an uninhibited character known around here as "the wild man of Hollywood."

"He's a wonderful actor and I think this picture will make him a big star but what a time we had with him!" signed Menjou.

"One day he had this brainstorm and had himself kidnaped—as a publicity stunt. The truth came out so he was fired. Fortunately it was near the end of the picture and they could use a double for the rest of his scenes. Even the Munich newspapers wrote editorials against our movie company for that stunt. We all were blamed for it."

Carey, he continued, caused such a commotion in the hotel dining room that the elegant, dapper Menjou gave him a lecture on manners and made him buy a suit of clothes to replace his casual attire.

"Some other fellows in the company were having various romances, and I had to listen to all the complications on that," Menjou went on.

Then thieves broke into the studio and stole the lenses right off the cameras. But the worst tragedy came when all of fashion-plate Menjou's clothes were swiped, a situation akin to Bing Crosby losing his voice or Jayne Mansfield her curves.

"The army loaned me some clothes until they caught the thief," said Menjou, resplendent today in a checked suit with double-breasted vest. "He was a drug addict. I had to throw the things away that he'd worn."

Be Careful IN Use of Ladder

Are you going to repair those loose and leaky gutters, patch the roof, or put up a TV antenna? If you have any "second-story job" in mind, you'll be getting up on a ladder. So watch your step.

More accidents happen on ladders, say the statisticians, than most places, but for the sake of your own skin and bones it's worthwhile to learn how to stay on a safe ladder.

It is not a circus stunt. All you have to do is to use your head as well as your hands and feet when working on a ladder.

Two men in the ladder business recently put their heads together over the number of sad accidents on ladders and came up with some sound advice. They are Walter C. Nash, who makes an adjustable ladder leg, and R. D. Werner, who makes aluminum ladders. Here are their rules:

1. Never stand on the top step of any ladder.
2. Don't prop up one ladder leg on uneven ground. Use an extension leg.
3. Always lock a door and post a warning sign when a ladder is in front of a door.
4. Don't lay tools on the top of a stepladder. Use the paint holder shelf.
5. Never over-reach on either side of a ladder. Keep your body straight.
6. Always face the ladder and hold on with one hand.
7. If you need both hands, hook a leg over a rung for security.
8. Use a board under both legs of a ladder on soft ground.
9. Don't get up on a ladder in a high wind, heavy rain or snow. If necessary in emergency, have an assistant there to hold the ladder.
10. Set a straight ladder or an extension ladder out from the house a distance equal to one-fourth the ladder's height.

No Such Thing As 'Dry Rot'

Dry rot, as at term, is "a lot of rot" in plain conversational terms. Actually there is no such thing as dry rot. A piece of lumber may be dry and rotten when you see it, but it never would have decayed if it had not been moist.

Experts say that no wood will decay if its moisture content is kept below 20 per cent.

"Paint," says a lumberman, "will not protect wood against decay. If the wood is not thoroughly dried to a moisture content far below 20 per cent when it is painted, it will rot behind the paint.

"Take any piece of ordinary lumber, paint it on all four sides and ends; put it in the ground as a fence post and it will decay just about as quickly as a piece that is not painted."

HERE'S HOW...

MAKE A BACK YARD ROLLER COASTER

A back yard roller coaster provides many hours of playtime enjoyment for the youngster.

First make the center platform starting with the two end frames. Use 2 by 4-inch lumber. The center side boards attaching the end frames and the trim for the top are made of 1 by 4-inch lumber. The top is made of 1 by 12-inch lumber. Assemble with 8-penny rust-proof nails.

The ramp is made of 1 by 12-inch lumber with 1 by 4-inch lumber centered along the edges of the 1 by 12. Construct the ramp in 6 or 8 foot sections so that when not in use, the parts can be easily stored. Use cleats at the joints to hold the sections together.

The braces are made of 2 by 4-inch lumber as shown.

Make the car to the dimensions shown. Use a jig or coping saw to cut out the wheels.

Drainage System Is Vital to Your Health

One part of a house people rarely think about when they are building or remodeling is the drainage half of the plumbing system. Then the day often comes when the drain gets clogged and this prosaic function takes on sudden importance.

The drainage system in your home is vital to your health and convenience. It's a phase of construction where you waste a lot of money or really save money both in installation and upkeep.

The ideal system in any home is to have the shortest possible plumbing lines of all kinds. For this reason modern architects try to plan kitchen and bathroom back-to-back or up-and-down. The most economical, of course, would be to have kitchen and all bathrooms in the front of the house, close to mains and sewers, but this is not always practicable.

However, excessive turns and elbows which invite trouble can be voided in many cases. Numerous joints can encourage clogging. Long waste lines with little or no pitch have trouble spelled out on the inside of the pipe where you can't read it. Clean-out plugs are a must in any drainage system, unless you are prepared for a major plumbing bill. And drains or pipes of any kind that interfere with basement windows or headroom mean a house built without benefit of ordinary architectural brains.

Advantages of Copper

For years, soil pipes including stacks and some waste lines were made of short lengths of heavy, rough cast material laboriously joined together with oakum and molten lead. In some places plumbing codes still require this system. But the most efficient drainage systems now being installed are copper — slick and smooth to speed the flow of water, and offering soap curds nothing to stick to.

Builders of quality houses are using copper for soil pipes as well as waste and vent lines. Their main reason — hard to believe — is to save money. Although copper drainage tube costs more than other metals, it is easier and faster to install and makes a good sales point both for the original owner and in any possible future resale.

A Connecticut plumbing contractor reported that the use of copper drainage tube reduced his roughing-in time by 2½ hours per fixture. Multiply this by the number of fixtures in a house and by the hourly cost of a plumber, and you can see how much money can be saved on this score. In addition, that contractor was able to save so much time on the installation of long drainage lines that he pared off between $40 and $60 per house.

Basement Traffic Is Heavy

The front entrance hall and other main floor hall areas are the most difficult to keep clean in the home, according to domestic science experts. Hall floors tend to get dirty the most quickly.

One way to avoid excessive wear on the floor itself or the floor covering is to reroute traffic.

For example, much dirt is tracked in on first floor carpeting by persons wishing to reach the basement. If a separate outside entrance to the basement is provided, maintenance problems can be reduced sharply.

Most home owners greatly underestimate the extent of their basement traffic, according to the Better Basement Institute.

When a playroom, workshop or laundry area is located below grade, persons may enter or leave from the outside as much as a dozen times a day. In addition, service men — gas, electric and water meter readers, furnace repair men, etc. — enter the basement regularly.

Small children may run into the basement play room with their friends dozens of times in the course of a day, the institute adds.

Even when the ground and walks outside are completely dry, persons stepping onto a carpet from the exterior leave a certain amount of dirt.

In bad weather, the likelihood of mud being dropped on the floors is increased by many times. If a home has an outside basement entrance, however, the danger of dirt being tracked onto the main floor is reduced considerably.

Usually the steps from the basement to the street will remain presentable with an occasional sweeping. The danger of dust, leaves, snow or ice accumulating on the steps can be prevented by providing complete protection against the weather and is also burglar-proof.

Shelf Brackets Are Easily Made

Sturdy wooden shelf brackets accommodating screws that will drive into wall studs can be made if you cut the top to leave a projection. The shelf is then notched to fit the projection. Practical Builder, trade journal, says this eliminates toenailing at the top of the bracket or the use of over-long screws for driving at an angle.
